

Professional Development Opportunities From Teaching Strategies

Online. On-site. Your choice.

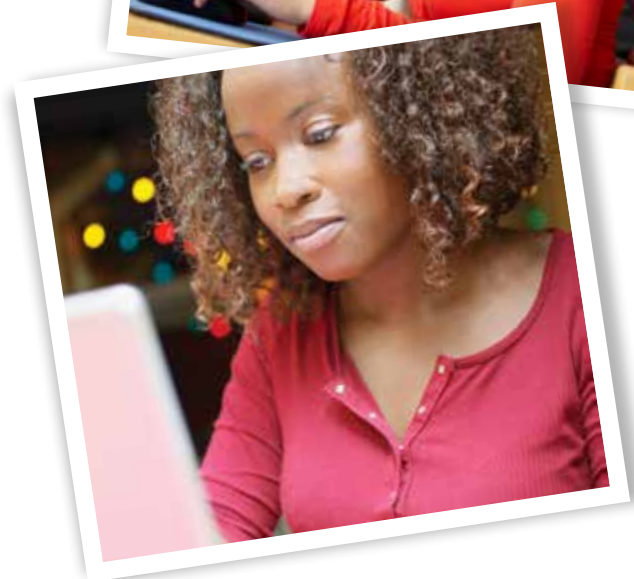

Teaching Strategies offers professional development options that fit every schedule and budget. Sessions are conducted either online, anytime and anywhere; or on-site at your program or nearby in your community.

Online

Our suite of self-paced, online professional development courses can be completed from any location with a computer and high-speed Internet access—meaning that you can participate whenever you have the time. Like our in-person sessions, online courses are targeted to meet the needs of educators with a range of experience levels.

On-Site

To best meet the needs of your particular program, Teaching Strategies offers on-site training and technical assistance at your chosen location. We will work with you to determine the sessions that best suit your program and send our highly qualified trainers directly to you. You can train your entire program staff at once or partner with other programs in your community. Training can be as short as 2 days or as long as 2 weeks.

2015 Professional Development Sessions

Professional development is available on-site or online, with options to fit every budget, schedule, and level of teaching experience (online-only training sessions are noted below). For complete session descriptions, visit TeachingStrategies.com/PD, or to register, call 800.637.3652.
