BODY OF KNOWLEDGE	FL.PD.B-8.	PHYSICAL DEVELOPMENT (Birth to 8 months)
BIG IDEA	PD.A.	GROSS MOTOR DEVELOPMENT
BENCHMARK	PD.A.1.	Shows characteristics of appropriate health and development
INDICATOR		Young infants demonstrate great progress in their motor growth and development. While this occurs in a predictable sequence, there may be differences in the rate of development. Optimal development occurs in a safe, healthy, consistent, and nurturing environment provided by the parents, caregivers, and teachers in the infants' lives. BIG IDEA	LC.C.	EARLY READING
BENCHMARK	LC.C.1.	Learns that pictures represent objects, events and ideas (stories)
INDICATOR		Just as young toddlers begin using words by naming and pointing to people and objects, they look at books and respond by pointing and naming the pictures. Parents, caregivers, and teachers read, talk about the pictures in books, and ask and answer questions of young toddlers. Through this process, young toddlers discover that the words and pictures in books match their experiences. They demonstrate their understanding that pictures represent real objects and events by:

BIG IDEA	LC.D.	EARLY WRITING
BENCHMARK	LC.D.1.	Makes purposeful marks on paper
INDICATOR		Young toddlers are fascinated with the tools used for writing. They want to use pencils, markers, paints, and brushes. They will decorate walls, books, and other surfaces. Young toddlers enjoy watching parents, caregivers, and teachers write, and they like to imitate the process. They create many different kinds of scribbles, some of which are organized. BIG IDEA	LC.D.	EARLY WRITING
BENCHMARK	LC.D.2.	Uses beginning representation through play that imitates familiar routines
INDICATOR		As with early reading, early writing develops as young toddlers understand that print provides meaning, represents messages, tells stories, can be read, and can be created by young toddlers themselves. Young toddlers begin to understand the power of representation as they participate in dramatic play, act out stories, sing songs, use hand motions, and recite the words to finger plays. They imitate those actions they are most familiar with, such as eating, dressing, bathing, diaper changing, and going to bed. They demonstrate this by:

BIG IDEA	LC.C.	EARLY READING
BENCHMARK	LC.C.2.	Shows motivation to read
INDICATOR		While they are self-motivated to learn with all their senses, two-year-olds' understanding of literacy concepts comes from interactions with parents, caregivers, and teachers. The motivation and interest they develop through integrated oral and written language activities promote positive feelings about reading and literacy experiences. It is the desire to share books and reading that will make them ready to do the hard work of recognizing symbols and eventually reading on their own. Two-year-olds show the motivation to "read" by:

BIG IDEA	LC.D.	EARLY WRITING
BENCHMARK	LC.D.1.	Uses scribbles, marks, and drawings to convey messages
INDICATOR		The scribbling of two-year-olds begins to look like understandable print. They begin to distinguish between writing words and drawing pictures and purposefully use symbols and drawings to express their thoughts or represent experiences or objects. They show their writing attempts to others, and they recognize common signs and symbols found in their environments. Two-year-olds begin to distinguish letters of the alphabet from other types of symbols, and they show an understanding of the writing process by:

BENCHMARK	LC.D.2.	Uses more complicated imitative play as symbolic thought processes and mental concepts or pictures are developed
INDICATOR		Two-year-olds' imaginative play takes on new dimensions during this stage. They are beginning to use play materials as symbols for things they have observed and experienced. They reenact these experiences and can play for short periods of time using their own

		imagination. “Storytelling” is enhanced when parents, caregivers, and teachers join in the pretend play. Two-year-olds may reenact many activities they see in their lives, such as:
