

Online Professional Development

Professional development is a critical component of a quality early childhood program.

Ongoing professional development is an essential aspect of ensuring teachers' commitment to high-quality, developmentally appropriate practice. On-demand online courses offer excellent opportunities for teachers and administrators to build knowledge, extend learning, and reinforce skills at any time throughout the year. These robust courses provide educators with the opportunity to extend learning in ways that best fit their schedule while allowing them to earn continuing education units (CEUs) upon completion.

Teaching Strategies' Online Professional Development offering provides teachers and administrators with access to more than 200 hours of product training and instruction on early childhood best practices. Administrators can provide their staff with on-demand access to our complete library of online courses through a cost-effective annual subscription, with new courses added throughout the year. Or, individual educators can invest in their own professional development and continuing education units with access to our complete library of online courses for a year.

Purchasing Information

Teachers and administrators can access all courses in our library with an online professional development subscription for $165.
